

A Little Laugh with Larry

The Hick

Larry Semon, Vitagraph's specialist in laugh stimulation, an erstwhile cartoonist of New York newspapers, has just completed "The Hick," another of his screen screamers. "The Hick" tells the story of a rural love that stopped at nothing. Gentle cows and rambunctious donkeys help to move the action along. The plot opens in the country and roams far afield to the environment of a "big town" cabaret.

The Bakery

In his latest purveyance of his peculiar kind of comedy, "The Bakery," Larry becomes a purveyor of dainty cakes and luscious buns. There is also a plot! Villians beset his employer's daughter to get her dough, and in doing so get nothing but her doting parent's goat. Larry becomes a lion-like palladium of valor in his defense, and fires all her enemies out of the bakery and into a mud puddle, thereby saving the family dough-bag and winning father's favor.
